

Lap Band Background

Lap Band Background

The Lap Band Procedure, which obtained the backing of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) nearly a decade ago, involves the placement of a band in the body in order to limit food consumption.

The Lap Band Procedure has been widely used in Europe and Australia since 1993, permitting men and women who are considered overweight or obese to have a chance at getting their weight under control once again.